COLORADO WATERCOLOR SOCIETY

Message from the President

By Greg Chapleski, CWS President

Well, here we go... another year of Colorado Watercolor Society (CWS) begins with the September membership meeting. It is always an exciting time as everyone comes together again after a summer filled with family activities, vacation travels and some serious backyard barbecues. Oh, and did I mention, some watercolor painting in the studio or out in the great outdoors – you did that, didn't you?

This first meeting will be focused on all the NEW MEMBERS of CWS – and, I'm pleased to say there are quite a few this time. We have added something new to their introduction: Not only do we ask the new members to bring one of their completed watercolor pieces to display for the evening, but we have a gift for each of them – something each of them will find very helpful as a new member of CWS. So, the invitation is extended to all new members to come and be a part of the festivities with your own creation for everyone to enjoy.

Several years ago, when asked to bring a painting to the new member meeting, I must admit I was nervous about the invitation. I judged that the skill level of my painting wouldn't measure up to that of the other members. Well I did it anyway, and to my delight everyone was most accepting and interested in what each new member had to show and say. It was an encouraging boost that motivated me to get involved. It will be the same this time for every new member... I guarantee it! After all, painting with watercolor is a journey and everyone advances at his or her own pace – and, that's a good thing.

The other events for the evening will include an opening presentation from the new president of CWS and various members of the Board. Earlier this year, as I was helping with the Spring Show at Lone Tree, I became aware of something very special about CWS and you the members. It is something I have thought about for several months and I would like to share it with all of you – it will be both informative and encouraging to everyone as CWS moves forward.

As is the tradition with CWS, we will have our Ice Cream Social™ – a time to enjoy taste-tempting treats and toppings as we renew friendships and make new ones. Also participating will be local art suppliers who will introduce their products and services to the art community – us.

I must say, that I am very excited about all the new ideas and programs we on the CWS Board have been discussing and working on in preparation for the September meeting. We are confident that you will find many opportunities to your liking, no matter what your skill level is. As members, we all should expect good things to happen that motivate everyone to participate as each venue presents itself. After all, we have a common thread that ties us together – watercolor – tubes of it, brushes, paper, and all the little extra materials that our creativity calls forward.

We hope to see you on the 16th of September (7-9pm) at the First Plymouth Congregational Church (SW corner of Colorado Blvd. & Hampden). Bring a friend – all are welcome!

CWS Member Show Filled with Winners

Gary Nichols,
Exhibition Official

If you were in any way involved in or attended the most recent CWS Member Show held at the Creative Community Center in Fort Collins back in July, you know what a great event it was. Janis Goldblatt and her army of member volunteers from northern Colorado did an outstanding job of putting it together and hosting the opening reception which seemed to satisfy everyone who attended.

When the paintings were delivered to the gallery by Gary Nichols, he was met with an eager group who accepted the challenge of making it happen. And, did they ever! The walls accommodated every artistic creation in a great venue that gave any viewer more than he or she could have asked for.

The juror, Bob Coontz was present for the opening reception and gave some very pointed compliments for the show and the quality of the CWS membership's work. Being a multi-media artist himself and on the faculty of Colorado State's Art department for over 30 years gave him a keen perception of the presentation.

He awarded 1st Prize to Robert Schilling of Loveland for his painting, "On the High Road to Chimayo" – 2nd Prize was awarded to Marcille Trahan of Greeley for her painting, "Medicine Wheel Bustle" – 3rd Prize was awarded to Chuck Danford of Littleton for his painting on yupo, "African Animals."

Bob also awarded several Honorable Mentions to artists whose paintings he thought had a high-level of understanding and application of watermedia. But, he didn't stop there. He went around the gallery and pointed out several paintings and explained in great detail how each artist captured a mood, a feeling or an idea that worked exceptionally well. It seemed to help all those present to re-view the the entire presentation with a new awareness.

Thank you to all who had a hand or brush in the Member Show for 2014. CWS has every reason to be both grateful and proud of everyone involved.

Next up, "New Trends" – watch for details and prospectus coming soon.
